A specialist employment law practice, unique by that fact that we have offices in central Manchester and Chester which enable us to provide coverage for the North West of England and beyond. The two partners have over 30 years experience of employment law between them providing unrivaled expertise in such a firm. Recommended since its establishment in the Legal 500, an independent directory of leading law firms, predominantly we act for employers but as our rates are extremely competitive in view of our size, we act for many individuals and are happy to deal with initial enquiries by telephone without any charge. Jim Chambers runs the Chester office and Andrew O'Neill heads up the Manchester office. Both worked in the employment departments of a number of the largest firms in the region before setting up the practice.
